Building Expertise in Administration and Management (BEAM)

“BEAM is a game-changer. This course provides you with valuable and practical content and exercises that you will find essential to performing your job and serving your communities. You will learn the analytical, administrative, financial, and socio-political aspects of public health to help you better manage situational issues, projects, and resources. BEAM does not focus on theory or models; it is focused on how things are done in a real-world setting.”

- Britni Lee

Section Chief, Governmental Public Health Agency

Coaching and Skill Application Project

- Provide subject matter expertise to enhance the online learning sessions via virtual live learning sessions.
- Support scholar teams throughout the skill application project.
- Serve as a resource to scholars throughout the program.

Performance Improvement applicant name

Performance Improvement applicant title

What would you like to gain from participation in the Strategic Scholars program? Please describe, considering how it will benefit your agency and how it aligns with organizational mission and strategic vision.

Scholars will apply the skills and information gained through the program on a project of their choice, with the assistance of a coach. Do you have a specific project or issue you'd like to address related to the topic of Resource Management? Please describe.

 Successful applicants will be expected to 1) complete 6 modules of self-paced online learning; 2) participate in 3 virtual learning sessions; 3) attend an in-person workshop in June 2020 and; 4) work with a coach to complete a skills application project.*

Applications are due February 7, 2020 by 5 pm ET. Late applications will not be considered.

Questions we've received

- Can territorial health departments apply?
- Is there a cost to participate?
- Who are the right people in our department to apply?
- Does the project you complete need to be related to PI work?
- How many teams are typically selected?
- Were tribal organizations considered?
- Is travel required?
- Will the web conference be available after the call?
